I have gathered this information from many people. No one knew a great deal. The following gave me information:
 Miss Alice Smith, Mrs. Geo. Clendenen, Rev. L. B. Kiree,
 Mr. James Jordan, Mrs. Nellie Sawyer, Mrs. James McNeel, all of Millboro and Mr. J. B. McNeel of Marlinton.

Chapter 6- Section 1

There is very little known about the little white Pole Church, but it is said that Bishop Asbury, the great apostle of Methodism, was the first minister who visited the Little Levels, and that as early as 1789 he preached in the little "white Pole Church", erected by John McNeel. The tradition is doubtless true, for it is substantiated by general records of the church.

It appears that the first organization was perfected here in the year of 1789 and at the time the members composing the church were:

John McNeel
Lartha McNeel
James Lewis
Rebecca Lewis
Alexander Maddell & wife
Charles Minnison
Jacob Minnison
Mrs. James Brinnell
John Switzer & wife
Richard Hill
Nancy Hill
Abraham McNeel & wife

Some years after John McNeel and the Minnison Brothers came to the Little Levels, they built a small log cabin as a place of worship. This cabin was called the White Pole Church and in all probability was the first church erected west of the Allegheny Mountains. It was built of very small logs and the logs were peeled which gave the church the appearance of being built of white poles and so, the name "White Pole".

This church was located in a part of what is now the McNeel Graveyard, situated on a hill overlooking the ancestral home, and on the farm now belonging to Dr. John McNeel. This land has been in the possession of a John McNeel ever since 1765.

This Cemetery was started when Martha McNeel, wife of John McNeel, dug the grave and buried her child, perhaps with the aid of a negro servant, while John McNeel was at the battle of Point Pleasant in the year 1774. John McNeel died in 1825 at the age of eighty years, and was buried in the McNeel Graveyard. The grave is marked by a sandstone carved from the native hills and engraved by John Bruffey, a neighbor.

The White Pole Methodist Episcopal Church, after some years, became too small and too inaccessible and the Methodist Church was moved into the town of Hillabore.

Since writing what I could find about the white hole church, I have been able to see the original deed to the land upon which this church was built. This deed is recorded in Bath County, Virginia but Mr. F. W. McNeil has the original. The following is a part of the deed.

Deed: 10th April, 1799. Between John McNeil & Martha his wife of the County of Bath, State of Virginia of the one part and Thos. Scott, Jno. Pinnell, Richard Hill, Griffith Evans, Jacob Mannison, Alex. Addell, William Addell, James Lewis and Jonathan McNeil, Trustees, in trust for the use and purpose hereinafter mentioned and declared. All the right, title, interest, property, claim and demand whatsoever, either in law or equity which the said John McNeil & Martha his wife both in, to, or for all a singular & certain lot or piece of ground situate, lying & being in the County of Bath & State aforesaid & containing one acre of land together with the house & outbuildings by the side of which garden, woods, waterways, privileges and appurtenances thereto belonging or in any way connected therewith have and to hold, in trust that they shall erect and build or cause to be erected and built thereon a house of prayer & worship for the use of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. F. W. McNeil tells me that the real name of the White Pole Church was Mount Taber as you can see by the deed. However it has always been known by the name "White Pole Church". This church or meeting house was built some time before the deed was made and was now too small for the number who worshipped there. The people were contemplating a new church and so John and Martha McNeil gave the land as a location for a new Methodist Episcopal Church. The location was very inaccessible and when John Jordan, son-in-law of John McNeil, offered some land in a better location for the church this was decided upon as the site for the new church. All denominations worshipped at the White Pole Church. It was more of a Meeting House but this was the beginning of the Methodist organization in the Hillsboro Community and the first in Peachontas County.

As I have said before John Jordan gave one acre of land for the church. This land was located about two miles east of Hillsboro on the old road leading to Sumner. The exact date that this church was used is not known but the deed recorded in the Clerk's office shows: Jan. ____ 1830 - From John Jordan and Lurien Jordan to William Johnston, Andrew Johnston, John Grimes, Richard Hill, Mark Minnison, Abraham Hill, Nathaniel Minnison, Trustees for Methodist Episcopal Church, one acre of land with houses that are built thereon, roads, waterways and privileges, in trust with the house that is built thereon for the purpose of giving support for the use and worship of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Georgia Co

The rules and discipline which from time to time may be agreed upon and adopted by the ministers and preachers of the said church or by the annual conference.

As according to this deed this church must have been in use about 1830. From the way the deed reads it sounds as though the building which was used for a church was already on the land, but Mr. James said that there was a building built for a church in which to worship. This church burned and is now known by everyone as the "old burned church".

Mr. James Jordan, a great grand son of the John Jordan who gave the land for the old burned church, is eighty-three years old. He told me that a man named John Casebolt, who had a little store on Locust Creek, went to this church. It seems that he had some kind of a disagreement with some members of the congregation. He gave a negro man a fur hat to burn the church. Casebolt disappeared very suddenly and never returned to this community. Mr. Jordan assured me that this was a fact.

Mr. Jordan said that the first preacher that he could remember was a circuit rider named Rev. Dixon. He came on foot and walked and preached all through Locustville and Randolph counties. As he was very small at that time, Mr. Jordan doesn't remember exactly how he was paid but thought perhaps they gave him a very small sum of money.

The next church built by this organization was located in the vicinity of the person who let it be known of Miller. It was a small chapel in the corner of a lot.

was a frame building. The land upon which this church was built was given by Nathaniel Minnison.

The deed: Jan 13, 1855 from Nathaniel Minnison to Israel I. Williams, Richard Hill, James Minnison, Geo. W. Lewis, John S. Harrison, Ab. Whiting, J. H. Sherman, C. Auldridge, and C. W. Jackson, Mrs. - one acre near the village of Hillsboro adjoining parsonage lot belonging to the L. L. Church, to erect a place of worship for the use of members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

This church, Wesley Chapel, situated on the hill beside the parsonage was used for many years. But toward the end of nineteenth century the congregation began to look for a location upon which they might build a larger, more modern building.

The First Church in Pocahontas County

White Pole Church

This church was built by John McNeel, the first permanent settler in the county, to show his gratitude to God for all his providential care, after all his wanderings and faers to permit him to find such a pleasant, wealthy place in which to live. It was dedicated, "To the worship of the Builder of the Universe." It is one of the very first churches to be built west of the Alleghenys. It is said that Bishop Asbury, the great Apostle of Methodism was the first minister who visited the Little Levels as early as 1789, and that he preached in the little White Pole Church. The tradition is doubtless true, for it is substantiated by general records of the church. It appears that the first organization was perfected here in 1789, and at that time the members composing the church were: John McNeel, Martha McNeel, James Lewis and wife Alexander Waidell and wife, Charles Kennison, Jacob Kennison, Mrs. James Brinnell, John Switzer and wife, Richard Hill, Nancy Hill, and Abraham McNeel and wife.

The deep hold that Methodism held in the Little Levels for a hundred years or more can be explained when I say that the man and woman who built the White Pole Church laid the foundation of the Methodist Church in Pocahontas County.

Martha Davis McNeel, wife of John McNeel brought with her to her new home in the Little Levels, a part of her dowry, a Bible
